HOME IMPROVEMENT ON HOLD

By Nicholas Brighton

A COUNCIL homes improvement programme has been delayed yet again due to funding cuts.

The Decent Homes programme aims to improve and upgrade council properties by fitting new bathrooms, kitchens and windows. But now more than 9,000 Haringey Council tenants have been told work will not commence for at least another year. This is after the council has said it has no option but to revise its Decent Homes programme and prioritise essential jobs after the government cut its original £85million budget by £50m for the next two years.

Fund for repairs to council homes is slashed by £50m

The scheme was set up by the Labour government but now the coalition has said it will cut the budget. Frustrated tenants say they fear the work will never go ahead.

Resident Paul Burnham, from the campaign group Defend Council Housing, said: "The last government promised a decent homes standard, now it's been delayed and cut. We're worried it's never actually going to be finished."

Haringey Council said it would use the £35m funding for the next two years on replacing windows, doors, roofs and crucial health and safety works, such as rewiring. However it said it was not possible to wholly replace kitchens or bathrooms in the next two years due to the cut, while repairs would continue as normal.

This situation affects all London boroughs following the deep cuts, meaning arms-length organisations such as Homes For Haringey are receiving less funding.

Claire Kober, Haringey Council leader, said: "With the reduced resources at our disposal we will continue to maximise every penny so that we can improve as many residents' homes as possible."

Homes For Haringey has refurbished just over 5,600 homes between 2008 and 2010. This year it will work to deliver improvements for more than 1,000 properties.

A spokesman for the Department of Communities And Local Government said: "The government inherited a backlog of £3.2 billion of work needed on council housing to bring it up to a decent standard and a huge national deficit which it has to reduce as a priority."

"In the spending review in October 2010, the government announced investment of £2.1 billion to help complete the Decent Homes programme."

NEWSPAPERS SUPPORT RECYCLING

By Nicholas Brighton

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR and Arsenal have clubbed together to support the national Be Clear On Cancer health initiative in the community.

The project aims to raise awareness of bowel cancer and the importance of early diagnosis and has attracted support from the two rival clubs in recognition of the important health messages it aims to give the community.

Be Clear On Cancer will help to encourage people, particularly those aged 55 and above, to visit a GP as soon as possible if they discover symptoms of bowel cancer lasting more than three weeks.

Part of the clubs' role will be to encourage members of community groups and volunteer organisations to sign up as community ambassadors, as well as engaging people in workshops, local events and opening their facilities to host meetings.

By spreading awareness of bowel cancer through the ambassadors, many of whom have an emotive connection with cancer, they aim to reduce the number of lives lost to cancer in the community.

Signing up to the campaign as a community ambassador, John Paterson said: "Having suffered cancer myself, I think it's important to pass on my advice and experience in any way I can. I want to reassure my local community that catching it early can ultimately save lives."

Grant Cornwell, chief executive officer at the Tottenham Hotspur Foundation, added: "As a club, we are always keen to support local health initiatives, especially those which could help reduce the numbers of lives lost to cancer in our community each year."

If anyone is interested in volunteering to help encourage early diagnosis of bowel cancer in the community, please sign up today or find out more information by emailing Maria Abraham at Spurs on maria.abraham@tottenhamhotspur.com

Praise: Ms Feathersone joins the group at parliament

Flagging up great work of cerebral palsy group

AN MP has helped to raise awareness of cerebral palsy and the special work of the London Centre for Children with Cerebral Palsy.

Lynne Featherstone, Hornsey and Wood Green MP, hosted a parliamentary reception to highlight the achievements of the Muswell Hill charity.

The charity's chief executive Marc Crank spoke about their difficult but successful work helping children to increase their mobility and become more independent through a technique called conductive education.

The Liberal Democrat MP also spoke on many of her visits to the LCCCP, which supports 55 families and their children ranging from ages one to eleven, of the "amazing support" the charity provides. She also praised the centre for "working tirelessly to help the children because the LCCCP's special work has touched many hearts".

MPs wade in to support campaign on waste site

By Nicholas Brighton

The battle against plans to build a 15,000 square metre waste processing plant at Pinkham Way has just stepped up a notch with three MPs now joining forces to help local residents.

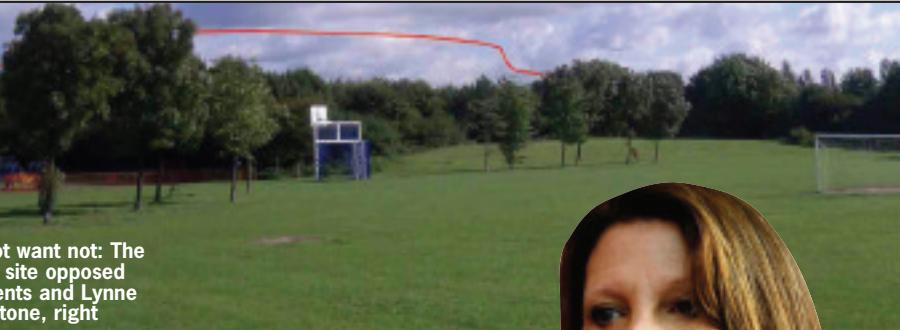

Lynne Featherstone, MP for Hornsey and Wood Green, Theresa Villiers of Chipping Barnet and David Burrowes of Enfield Southgate met last week to discuss the plans, which they believe will have a severe impact on the local environment.

The North London Waste Authority (NLWA) has submitted plans to Harringey Council to build the vast treatment factory on woodland adjacent to the North Circular Road's junction with Colney Hatch Lane which will incorporate the relocation of Barnet Council's vehicle depot.

The plant is estimated to treat 300,000 tons of black-bin waste from at least four boroughs and there would be an increase of over 1,100 vehicle journeys a day through one of the busiest junctions in north London.

The MPs' main concerns are the effects of traffic fumes, noise pollution as well as smells from the plant which will be operational 24 hours a day. Parents also fear the reduction in air quality may lead to respiratory problems in children, such as asthma.

Ms Featherstone said: "I know how worried local residents are and so it is fantastic that we have come together – MPs and residents. Together we will be stronger."

Waste not want not: The proposal site opposed by residents and Lynne Featherstone, right

Mr Burrowes added: "This is the first time MPs have come together across three constituencies to campaign on an issue – it is an exceptional demonstration of the opposition to the proposal."

Local people have formed the Pinkham Way Alliance to focus their opposition to the plans and to try to come up with something more acceptable.

Speaking on behalf of the Alliance, Colin Parish said: "The fact MPs have got together to fight these plans is further evidence of how inappropriate they are – the nearest flat is just 85 metres away from the site, with the nearest primary school being 308 metres away." There are 20 schools within a one mile radius of the proposed plant.

The waste plant would be one of the biggest of its kind in Europe – however similar plants in Europe are built far away from towns and cities.

Power over rowdy groups is granted

GANGS of rowdy youths congregating in High Road, Tottenham, will continue to be legally split up by police after a dispersal order currently in place was extended.

The order, which was put in place by Haringey Police and Haringey Council in January, was due to expire on July 10 but has now been extended until January 10 after concerns from the community.

The order, which entitles PCSOs and PCs to disperse groups of people under 16 causing anti-social behaviour between 9pm and 6am, is to prevent those not supervised by a responsible adult, and who are at risk of being victims or a perpetrators of anti-social behaviour.

Under the power, people who stay or return to the area after being told to move on is punishable by three months in prison and/or a fine of up to £2,500 under section 30 of the Anti Social Behaviour Act. Officers will regularly patrol the dispersal areas and may also detain offenders if necessary.

Sgt Paul Dowling of Tottenham Hale Safer Neighbourhood team has said: "We have extended the dispersal order in response to ongoing concerns from residents about anti-social behaviour, causing members of the local community to feel unsafe."

Anyone with information about antisocial behaviour in Tottenham Hale can call Tottenham Hale Safer Neighbourhood team on 020 8721 2669.

Pupils and

School's new wall cements bonds with college pupils

By Nicholas Brighton

CONSTRUCTION students from CONEL recently completed repairing St Francis de Sales RC Primary school's large brick wall.

The wall, located in the infants' part of the school, has seen dedicated brickwork level two and level three learners spend three weeks rebuilding it, restoring it to its former glory.

The moment the school realised its wall was in need of repair, staff had no hesitation in calling the College of Haringey, Enfield and North-east London's school of construction.

Deputy head Debbie Hood said: "The college has a great history of construction training so we immediately thought of them when we needed help to rebuild our wall. The college has done an absolutely fantastic job, ensuring we receive top-notch quality and customer care."

Mark Furneaux, brickwork tutor, added: "The best way to learn is to work on real-life situations, which helps students gain confidence while seeing the brickwork theory in practice."

The bricks used in the renovation of the St Francis de Sales wall were donated by construction firm Inside Housing.

Curriculum manager Jamie Purser said: "It was a delight to provide help to our local community as well as giving our learners essential work experience."

Protos' bonkers show is a farce to be reckoned with

SURELY Protos Theatre & Arts Group must have a special committee dedicated to finding the most bonkers-sounding plays possible! The Hornsey-based group always stage their entertaining pantomimes just after Christmas but around this time of year they annually seem to be touched by the sun and collectively unearth some weird and wonderful comedy from the library of Samuel French.

This year the discovery is Wild Goose Chase – a farce in three acts.

"So there's this character called Lord Elrood who is absolutely nuts!" said spokeswoman Janet Praverman, already beginning to chuckle. "And he's running around in uniform thinking he has to shoot people."

Why? "Because he's nuts, Jonathan! And then there's a maid called Aida but everyone calls her Mildred, while Lady Elrood thinks some gangsters are piano tuners, and I play an archaeologist called Miss Partridge who is also a bit nuts and is obsessed by Norman relics and bangs around a lot!"

Audience members will also be relieved to know that Janet will not be reviving her infamous French accent again but will be attempting something a little more, "posh"...

● The fast and the furious farce takes place, once again, at The Campsbourne Baptist Church in The Campsbourne. It opens tonight and runs until Saturday. Shows start at 8pm. Tickets cost £8 (£6 for children). For more details and reservations call the box office on 020 8374 2249.

Harry Potter And The Deathly Hallows: Part 2 (12A)

Dir: David Yates
Starring: Daniel Radcliffe, Rupert Grint, Emma Watson

THE teenager sitting next to me said he paid good money to be here.

"I went on eBay and there were tickets for a thousand, quid!" he said, breathlessly. "I got it for a lot cheaper than that but it was still pricey."

But why pay out at all when you can see it for less than a tenner a few days later? "I want to be one of the first," he said. "This has been my life!"

Which neatly sums up the epic appeal of the Harry Potter franchise which has dominated film and literature for a decade.

Getting steadily stronger since my personal favourite – number three – I did feel the last one was one of the weakest and was concerned the final finale would struggle under the weight of such expectation.

But from the tense opening we are thrust into an absolutely gripping couple of hours of Horcruxes and mighty battles, death of loved ones and climax to relationships, the return of favourite characters and final proof that Daniel Radcliffe has the acting chops in a powerful and rather moving central performance.

In many respects it's pretty much blockbuster-by-numbers and don't go expecting any imaginative stylistic flourishes or radical shifts in tone (which is what I loved so much about

Hallows says goodbye to a magical era

Boy to man:
Daniel Radcliffe is a compelling lead

Pt. Three) but praise to director David Yates who successfully makes this entertaining while cramming in an awful lot of information to fill in the gaps of the past ten years.

The only disappointment is a lame coda which shifts the action forward 19 years, but that only lasts five minutes and at least we are spared the kind of rambling end to The Lord Of The Rings saga which almost killed that franchise in my affections.

What the conclusion to this eight-parter also celebrates is the best of British, not just in the inspired author and locations, but in the acting in which every great thespian from our shores seems to have played a part over the years and which a few great ones for the future are sure to have started their careers.

Now Showing...

Trust (15)

Intelligent film about sensational subject. Teen Annie chats to a seeming kindred spirit online before he tells her he's 20... then 25... and when she finally meets him he's in his mid-30s and intent on taking her to a motel room. The big surprises is that Friends' David Schwimmer directed.

Transformers 3: Dark Of The Moon (12A)

Another tired franchise tries 3D in a lame bid to add interest to a plotless void starring cars that turn into robots. Rosie Huntington Whiteley (Megan Fox with blonde hair) is eye-candy to rival the CGI but it's too long, too bombastic and therefore classic Michael Bay.

Bridesmaids (15)

Finally... a funny film for women by women. Bridesmaids fall out in before a wedding resulting in a riot of gross-out, sharply observed humour that ditched stereotypes and condescension for a ding dong of a night out.

Green Lantern (12A)

Let's hope this dim lamp doesn't light the path for a long summer of naff blockbusters. The comic superhero limps into life as the bland lead the bland.

MODRIC FUMES AT LEVY STANCE

By Dominique Stafford

LUKA MODRIC has slammed Tottenham Hotspur chairman Daniel Levy after claiming that he broke a gentleman's agreement between the pair.

Spurs rejected a £22million bid from Chelsea for the want-away midfielder last month, with Levy saying that Modric was not for sale at any price.

But Modric, who held face-to-face talks with the chairman on Thursday, insists that Levy told him last summer that Spurs would consider any offer that came in from a bigger club, and made his frustration clear in an interview with Croatian newspaper Sportske Novosti.

"Last summer Levy said we would find a satisfactory agreement if a club like Chelsea came in," he said. "A lot has been published in the press about the meeting with Levy, who gave the public a twisted account of what happened.

"I am genuinely disappointed about what Levy said to me. He didn't care about what I was telling him. It only convinced me further that I was right to consider moving on to another club."

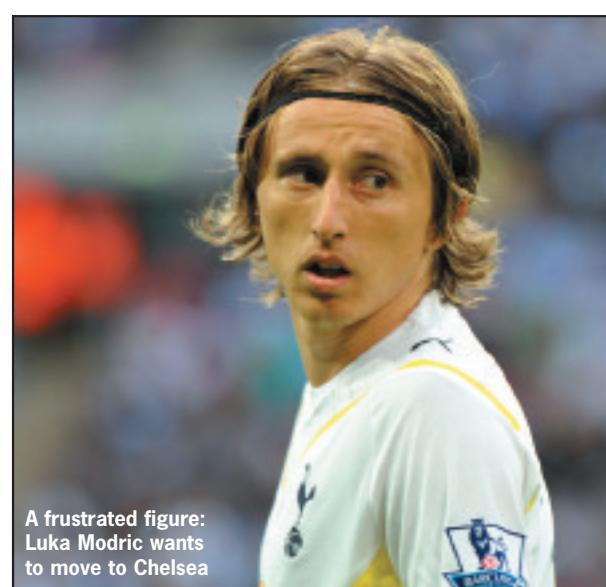

"I reminded the chairman of our gentleman's agreement when I agreed a contract extension with Tottenham last summer. Then I had an open chat with Levy that if a bigger club came in with a concrete offer we would consider it and agree the best solution for all concerned.

"Now Levy doesn't want to talk to me and said there is no possibility that I can leave Spurs. He threatened me – he said if I didn't accept the club's stance they would make me sit on the bench or in the stands."

Chelsea responded by making an improved bid – believed to be in the region of £27m – on Monday, but that is again likely to be rejected and manager Harry Redknapp remains hopeful that Modric will stay.

"We need to keep him," Redknapp said. "He's a fantastic player for us, but it's up to the chairman, he makes those decisions.

"I certainly wouldn't want to lose him, but it's a difficult situation. He's a fantastic boy, and it's not easy when people come along and start offering to double or treble your wages."

Mbu thrilled by Skolars' victory

THE London Skolars continued their upturn in form as a late try from Gareth Honor helped them to snatch a 36-34 victory at home to Oldham in rugby league's Co-Operative Championship One on Saturday.

The match was played at the Twickenham Stoop as part of a double header with Harlequins' Super League game against Wigan, but the change in venue failed to disrupt the Skolars as they secured a fourth straight home win – their best run since joining the professional ranks nine years ago.

It had looked like the Skolars would enjoy a comfortable triumph when they opened up a 30-12 lead early in the second half, but Oldham came storming back – scoring 22 unanswered points to move ahead.

However, the hosts refused to panic and Honor's 73rd-minute try levelled the scores before Dylan Skee slotted over the decisive conversion.

Skee, Ade Adebisi, James Anthony, Sam Gee and Jaroslaw Obuchowski scored the Skolars' other tries.

The match also saw head coach Joe Mbu make his first appearance for almost two years, and he expressed his delight at the outcome.

"That's what you enjoy about rugby league – pulling off a tough win," he said. "We're a young side and we've yet to build on the early leads that we have enjoyed in the past few games.

"We lost momentum, but persistence and a mentality of knowing it's not finished until the final hooter got us through again."

The London Skolars return to action at Workington on July 24.
